

TGM International Sports Betting Survey 2022

The world's largest independent survey about Sports betting behaviours.

Country report

TGM International Sports Betting Survey 2022.

Sports betting is seeing a surge in popularity. The digitalisation of bookmakers has made it easier for them to offer their services online, contributing to the global spread of this activity.

To keep up with this trend, we polled a representative sample of over 28,000 respondents from 44 countries about their perceptions, attitudes, and behaviours toward this form of entertainment. This edition of TGM International Sports Betting Survey 2022 will provide you with an inside look at the world of "speculative investment."

Let's look at how sports fans worldwide make money from their knowledge of these various athletic competitions.

Participation in sports betting

What is the interest and participation in sports betting?

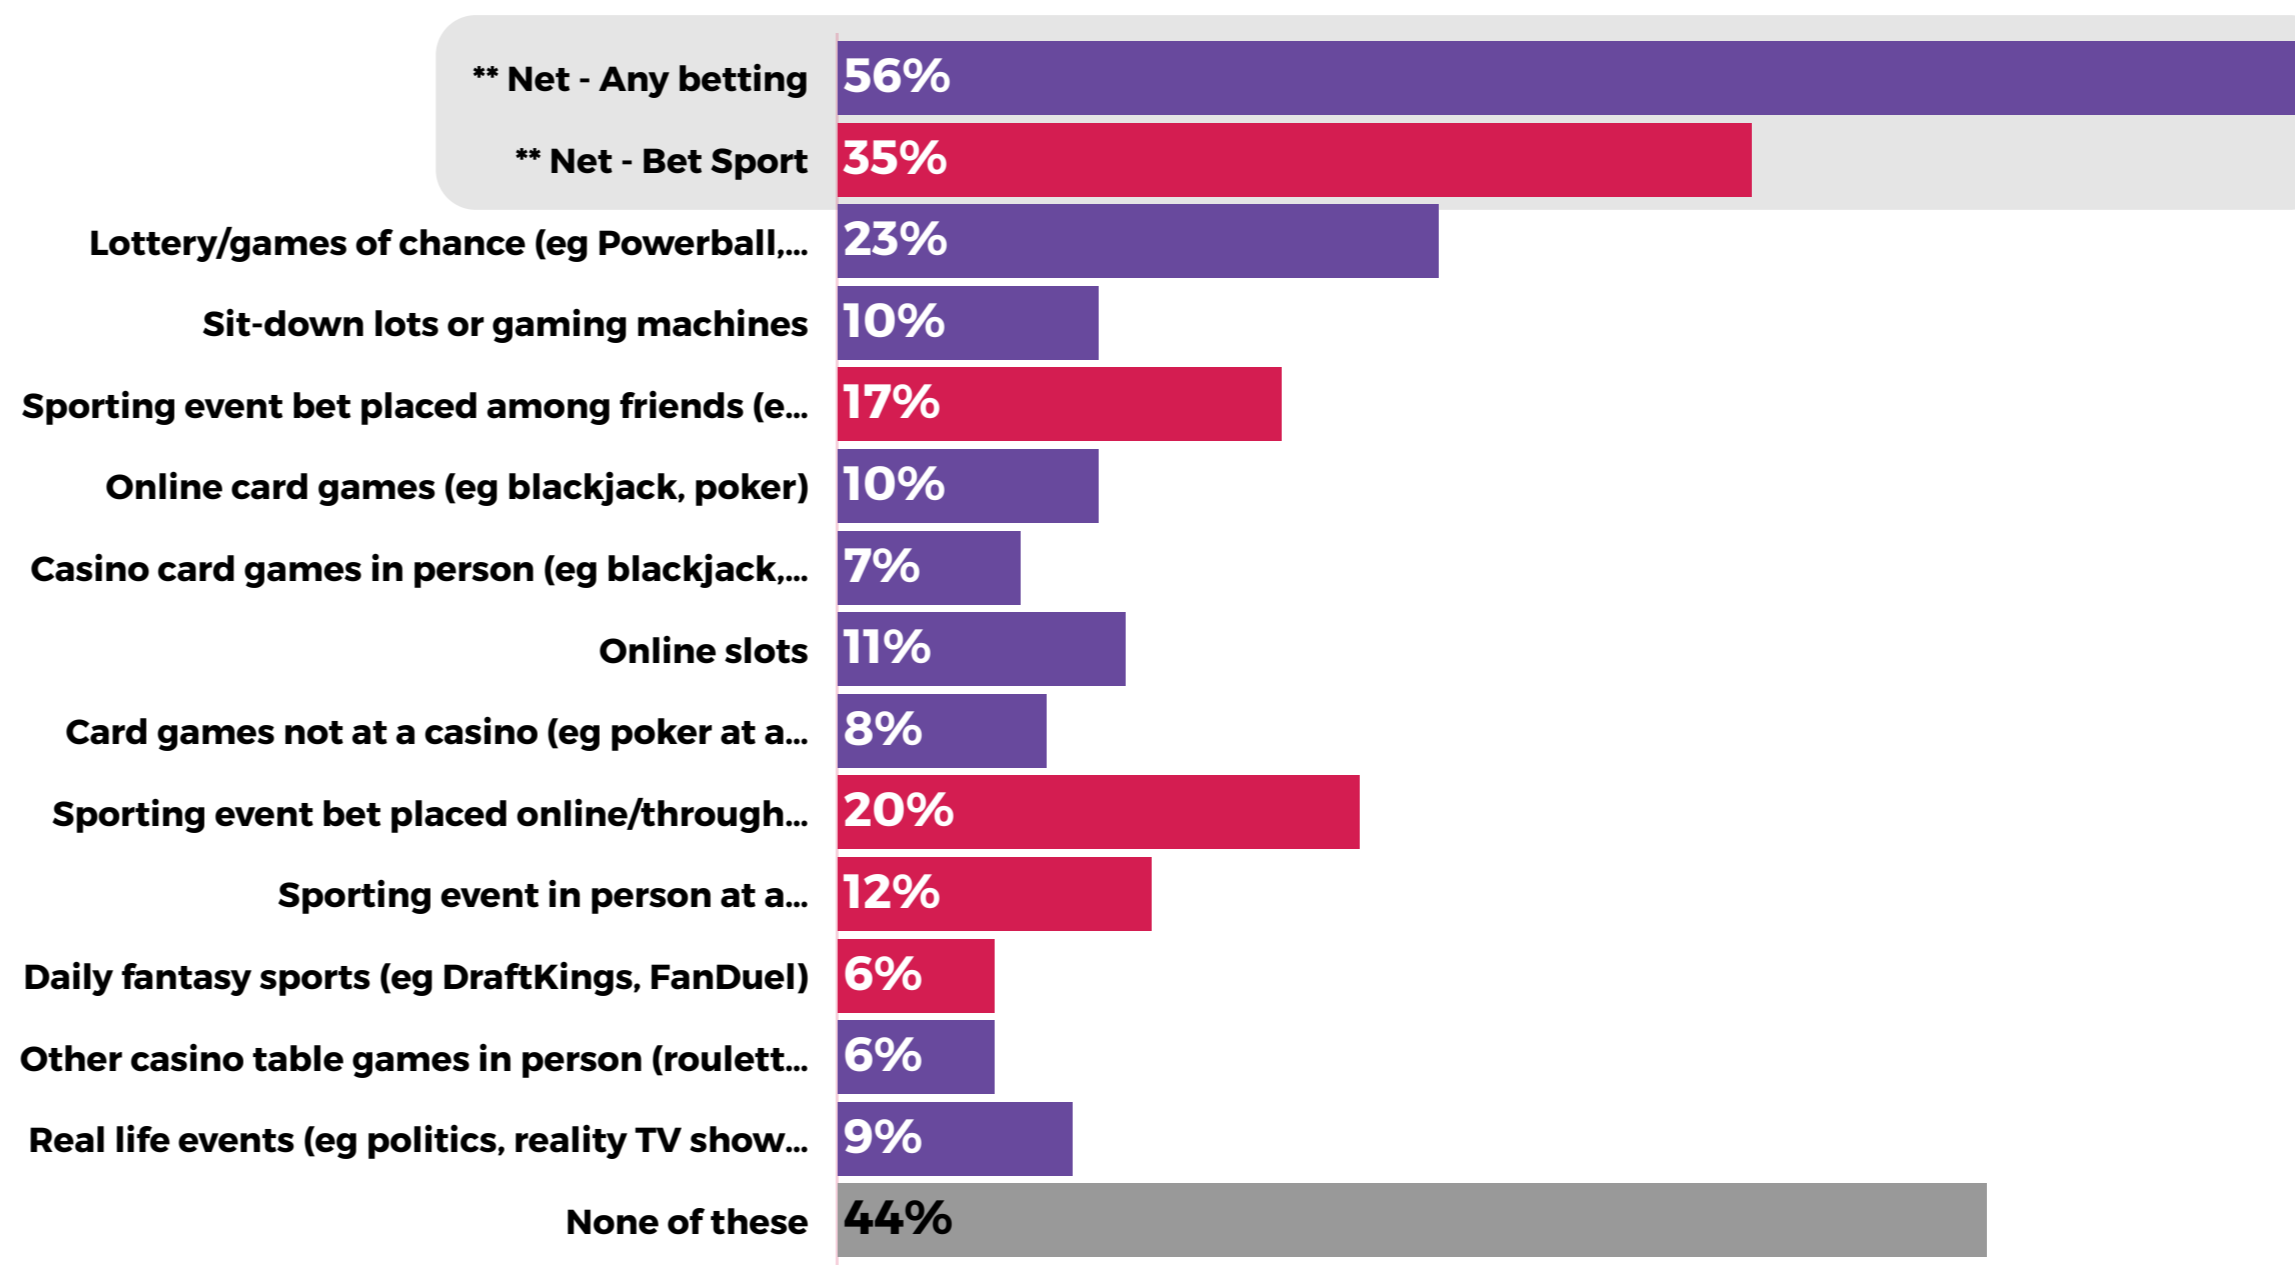

What is the level of interest in betting activities?:

Worldwide

Bookmakers were once exclusively found at racetracks, but now we can bet on a variety of different games from anywhere in the world, from a casino to an internet betting site. The types of bets we can place change as technology advances, from traditional spectator sports to more interactive ones like casino games and fantasy sports.

According to our survey, 56% of participants had engaged in at least one betting activity, and 35% had placed bets on sports in the previous year. The majority of bettors prefer lucky games, with 23% preferring lottery and games of chance. When it comes to sports betting, 20% do it online, and 17% do it with their friends.

What is the level of interest in sports betting?

Worldwide

Sport is woven into the cultural fabric of many countries around the world, and sports betting is finding its way into our daily lives as technology advances.

Just about all the sports betting categories are experiencing high levels of interest in Africa, with online betting accounting for the lion's share (34%). On this continent, 23% said they were interested in wagering between friends, making it the second most popular form of betting among Africans. These figures exceed those in Europe, where sports betting has been popular for a long time.

Sports games also arouse a great deal of emotion. Watching competitions and making winning predictions for the games is more exciting.

Many sports fans wager on the outcomes of the contests. Since many people are tempted to try betting on the results for the first time, it is traditionally when online booking agents are attracting a new pool of users.

Attitude towards betting

How engaging will the games be?

Betting motivations:

Worldwide

Sports betting is one of the oldest forms of entertainment. Understanding the strategies, carefully examining the teams, and then correctly placing the bets are all critical aspects of this endeavour. However, some people come here specifically for the thrill that only this type of activity can provide.

Approximately half of our survey participants bet to make money. This provides an environment for sports fans to hone their skills and earn extra money by following their favorite games. 35% of people gamble on sports for the sheer joy of it, a slightly higher percentage than those who believe betting makes watching a game more interesting.

Betting motivations:

Worldwide

The legalisation of sports betting has made headlines in recent years. It is fundamentally changing how we watch sports and what it means to be a professional sports fan. With billions of dollars wagered on sporting events each year, the motivation for people's betting habits is more than just monetary gain.

According to our survey, the primary motivation for betting is to win money. Africa had the highest percentage, at 68%, and Latin America had the lowest, at 51%. Latin America and Asia Pacific are at the top of the list, with 40% and 39% of bets placed by those seeking excitement and pleasure, respectively. In comparison, the Asia Pacific region has the highest percentage of residents who enjoy the atmosphere at gambling establishments, have extra money to spend, and are willing to try new things, making it one of the most lucrative markets for the gambling industry.

Betting brands

Which betting platforms are the most known?

Which betting platform brands are the most known?

Worldwide

There are multiple sports betting platforms. Across the sports betting industry, every platform often touting the same features and offerings. In a sea of sameness, it can be tough to differentiate from the competition. In addition, the difference in the prices of bets and the elasticity of odds between sites is rather negligible. Therefore, investment in brand awareness is one of the key elements of the marketing strategy - to recruit, register and retain active customers over time.

< Italy >

The global sports betting market has got a couple of noticeable international players. However, in many countries, local brands distinguish themselves by setting up local partnerships, securing visibility in the local market, and staying ahead of the competition.

What is noticeable for occasional betters could not recall any platform brand directly, highlighting that the platforms are considered more from the functional standpoint than from the brand awareness level.

 Sisal
in Italy is considered as the most known betting platform
